Dear

This letter is to make sure that you agree to your memories being included in the From RFC airfield to suburb – a century of change lottery funded project, and that you understand that your words will be kept and made available for people to listen to and/or read as a permanent, public reference resource. This means that they may be used in research, education, lectures, publication, broadcasting, exhibitions and public performances. They may also be published (in whole or part) on the internet and any other new media that may be developed, and may be edited for any of these purposes. All contributions will be kept securely in the project archive collection, which will be held by the Landscape Heritage Research Foundation. Copies of the archive may also be given (in whole or part) to other appropriate archives after the project has ended (in October 2020).

The purpose of the copyright agreement (on the next page) is to ensure that you are happy for us to use your contribution in this way, and that it is added to the Archive collection in strict accordance with your wishes. You do not have to assign to us the copyright in your contribution, but if you choose not to the ways in which it can be used are very limited, and we may not include it in the archive. By assigning the copyright in this work to the Project you give your permission for us to copy it and make it publically available for people to use for the purposes outlined above, unless you state otherwise.

You may limit the uses of your contributions (including limiting public access for a maximum of 30 years). If you wish to do so, please state these conditions on the next page. Please also tell us how you wish to be named as the author of your contribution in any displays or exhibitions we produce (for instance, whether you would like us to use your full name, or whether you would prefer first name or surname only). You may choose to remain anonymous, but this can only be agreed to for a limited time (up to a maximum of 70 years). Personal information (other than that mentioned in the contribution itself) including your address will be treated in the strictest of confidence, stored securely under the Data Protection Act, and will not be published, or shared with any outside parties.

We really appreciate the time you have taken to speak to us, and the valuable contribution that you are making to our Project. If you have any questions about the project, or your contributions to it, please do not hesitate to get in touch.

Many thanks.

Christine Handley, Project Officer on behalf of LHRF
Telephone: 0114 272 4227   E-mail: christine@hallamec.plus.com
Copyright Agreement

I give my permission for my contributions to be kept as part of the From RFC airfield to suburb – a century of change Archive collection, and for them to be made permanently and publically available for the purposes of education and research, publication, lectures, broadcasting, exhibitions, public performances, and published (in whole or part) on the internet and any other new media that may be developed. I also give my permission for my contributions to be edited for these purposes.

I do/do not wish to limit the uses that my contributions may be used for (please give details below):

As the author of my contributions I would like to be known by (please tick):

- Full name
- Surname only
- First name only
- Anonymously (for a maximum of 70 years)
- Other (please state)

I hereby assign the copyright in my contribution to the From RFC airfield to suburb – a century of change Archive Collection to the Project for the entire period of copyright in the material. I acknowledge that this gives the Project the right to use my contribution for the purposes outlined above, and to give copies of my contribution to other libraries and archives for them to make available for the same purposes. I maintain the right to be named as the author of my contribution.

Signed: Date:

Name (printed):

Address:

Signed (LHRF): Date:

If you would like to be kept informed about the progress of the project please tick here ( )

Please note: your personal information will be stored securely and only used to identify your contribution as part of this project.